About PEBL & Psych Lab 101

PEBL (Psychology Experiment Building Language) is an open source software program proposed with an aim of creating a computer based interface for psychological testing and measurement. PEBL has more than 100 psychological tests and experiments which are open for students, and researchers. With the help of PEBL, one can design their own experiments and tests for their academic and research purposes. Psych Lab 101 is an application with 35 cognitive and clinical psychology experiments and is freely available for the academic and research purposes. Hands on experience about these two computer applications will enhance your knowledge and skills related to computerized psychological testing. With the help of these computer applications, new psychological tests and experiments can be built to suit your academic and research purposes. The additional benefit is that computer interface is very user-friendly for administration, scoring and interpretation.

About the workshop

The objectives of the workshop are the following

- ▶ Introduce PEBL (Psychology Experiment Building Language) and Psych Lab 101
- ▶ Provide training on tests available in PEBL and Psych Lab 101
- ▶ Provide training on writing a new Program in PEBL
